Manchester Hackathon, Open Data and Data Crossfader

Posted on November 19, 2012 by admin

UPDATE: If you'd like to keep updated about the project as it develops, please follow datacrossfader on Twitter.

It's certainly no secret that I'm a flag waver for Newcastle's forward thinking Culture Code hack earlier this year, so I was intrigued when I heard about Manchester Hackathon - the first organised opportunity for dataphiles to play with Manchester's Open Data sets.

A screenshot of the Hackathon.io website. The browser address bar shows "www.hackathon.io". The main heading reads "JOIN HACKATHON.IO TO DISCOVER HACKATHONS OR CREATE YOUR OWN". Below this are three columns: "Discover a Hackathon" with a calendar icon and text "Build out your calendar around the hackathons you're going to dominate.", "Connect with a Team" with a group of people icon and text "Use Hackathon.io to scout talent and assemble a crew of super-skilled coders and designers.", and "Win Cool S#%T" with a star icon and text "Take home money, gadgets, vacations and infinite bragging rights." Below these is a search bar "Search Hackathons" with a "near" dropdown and a "Location" input field. Two results are shown: "НЕДВИЖИМОСТЬ" in Moscow and "Game CoLab Education Hackathon" in Phoenix. The bottom of the browser shows several open tabs, including "DOW European-Spac...pdf", "draft ministerial agen...PDF", "Πάβλο κρυωσλας 2ο...docx", "contract_skt_2014_v2.doc", and another "draft ministerial agen...PDF".
